WHAT'S in a pack of cigarettes — besides, according to some, a potential case of cancer? Progressive Farmer describes the contents thus: 3¼ cents of farmer valued tobacco, 13 cents U. S. and state excise taxes, and 10¼ cents for marketing storage, transportation, processing, packing and retailing costs. If anybody is making a good thing out of the poisonous weed, it's government.

"Capital punishment is when government taxes you in order to get capital to go into competition with you, and then taxes the profits on your business to pay for its losses."

Why Am I Here

. . . Lesson for April 12, 1964 . . .

Background Scripture: Genesis 1:26-30; Psalm 8; Luke 12:4-7. Devotional Reading: Psalm 1.

If this is God's world, then it is my world too. Not mine in the sense that I can do what I please with it. Only God is free to do as He likes with the world, for He and He only has the power, the wisdom and the goodness to will and to do what is absolutely right. This is God's world first because God made it. It is my world first not because I made it, but because the same God who made it made me. If I can speak of my mountains, my country — much greater than I but still truly mine, I can speak of my world, the home God made for me. I belong here. I am created just as all things are created — not all at once with a big bang, but through the long centuries to the hour of my birth and beyond, I have come to be — and this is the good pleasure of God. . . . . .

"Little Less Than God"

The poet who wrote Psalm 8 speaks of man as created little less than God. Perhaps that seems too bold; our older English translation says "little lower than the angels," but the Hebrew means plainly "little less than God." This is a staggering thought. Let us take it as its lowest meaning, so as not to be puffed up with pride. In the beginning of the Bible it is said that man is created in the image of God. That means that there is something in man, creature though he is, which shows a likeness to the God who made him.

"All Things Under His Feet"

This joyful Psalm 8 thinks of man not in seclusion with a fence between him and the other creatures around him, but as having "dominion," that is, control and mastery over the rest of creation. Now this can be done in two very different ways. A man who owns many hundred square miles of forest can cut the forest down and by careless, greedy methods lay waste the entire countryside — it has often been done. That man has demonstrated his "dominion" — his machines have been victorious over every tree that stood in their way. But the end is a vast countryside destroyed. An opposite example is another man who is a woodcarver. Out of pieces of wood, not specially beautiful, he makes objects which are useful and a delight to the eye. He is master of the wood; but when he gets through with it, he has brought beauty and usefulness into the world, not an empty desert. In times gone by witch doctors would use poisons from plants they knew of to bring death to their enemies. Today some of those very plants and their poisons are used by chemists to make medicines that save people's lives. Witch doctor and scientist both have dominion over the plants of the field — but what a difference!

We Are Obliged

High though we are in the scale of life, nevertheless we are obliged to "our neighbor the universe" in ways past counting. Every atom in our bodies was drawn from the ground on which we walk, the air we breathe and the water we drink. If the universe had not nourished us we could never have been born. All the clothes we wear, everything we use and enjoy, is a gift of the universe around us. If we have friends, they too were cradled by the selfsame earth and sea and sky. When our Lord was here, it could have been arranged that He be fed by manna from the sky. But no, one of the marks of Jesus as a true and not make-believe man was that He too had to be nourished and furnished by the world around Him, even as we. So, although we are indeed to have dominion over other creatures, the thought of what we owe to our wonderful world, will keep us from being tyrants, hateful and destructive. If we have any power, it is God-given; and we have no right to use our powers in ways that defy the laws and slander the character of our Creator.

Guidance Of The Conscience

Adolf Eichmann, who rounded up and had exterminated more than six million people in connection with the Hitler regime, when arraigned and condemned, said, "I will not humble myself nor repent any way . . . I could not . . . pretend that I had suddenly changed from a Saul to a Paul. No I must say . . . that if it had been ten million I would say, 'good' we have destroyed an enemy'.

God has given all the implements necessary for us to find and do His will. He has withheld nothing. These are however spiritual and personal tools rather that outward and material. And it is possible for man to veer his path through the wilderness of confusion of this world.' The Psalmist writer said. In all thy ways acknowledge him and he will direct thy paths' Proverbs 3:6

There are some conclusions to be reached based upon the wisdom of the Proverbs,

For one thing, Edu ation and Culture in themselves do not keep human nature from expressing its depraved self. Japan, Germany, and Russia were and are highly skilled in the development of the skills of humanism, but history records the fallacy of the natural man.

The present trend in modern education, with its major emphasis upon science and technology gives rise to real concern by some. To set up mathematical equasions, and IBM tabulators for measuring the abilities and aptitudes of our students is too limited to give an acurate picture. Motivation, which comes in a person's relationship to Reality, is one of the greatest factors. Recently an Associate Dean of one of our Universities said, 'It matters little to me (us) what a person's moral and spiritual background and desires may be, all we want is high intellectual ability.' And that to be measured by some man-

Prospect.
